BODYWORKS
A Toolkit for Healthy Girls & Strong Women

BodyWorks: an obesity prevention program for healthy girls and strong women developed by The Office on Women's Health, U.S Department of Health and Human Services to help parents and caregivers of adolescent girls improve family eating and exercise habits. Through facilitated workshops parents and caregivers will learn how to create change for their families that includes the adoption of healthy eating habits and breaking down the barriers that keep people from engaging in physical activity while recognizing the impact that the environment and media have on their choices.

Registrants receive a free toolkit that provides information, tools and strategies. BodyWorks is being offered at The Kingston Hospital, Education Center, 394 Hasbrouck Ave., Kingston, New York, 5:15-7:15 PM for eight weeks beginning September 26 for 8 weeks. The program is free of charge but a refundable $20 deposit is required at the time registration that will be returned upon completion of the program. The adolescent girls will be invited to attend selected programs.

To register submit the following with a $20 check made payable to The Community Heart Health Coalition of Ulster County:
